[1] [6] Plot Ajaatshatruro "Aja" Lavash Patel (Dhanush), who has lived his whole life in a small neighborhood of Mumbai, is a street magician and a trick that fools people into believing that he possesses powers special magic. It tells the story of him to three children captured by the police and now they are going for a judicial custody of four years. After the untimely death of his mother, he leaves on a journey to find his estranged father in Paris with a false notes of EUR 100. There, he meets a woman named Marie Riviere (Erin Moriarty) in a furniture store that initially swindles, but he is quickly drawn to her personality. Aja then experiences a series of adventures in wide ranging all over the world, initially in an IKEA wardrobe in London, England, then a Louis Vuitton suitcase in Rome, in Italy, and a hot air balloon to the ship in the direction of Tripoli, Libya . The ship is robbed the money he earned by selling the shirt on which he wrote an emotional incident from his childhood to him. In Libya, he meets a Somali man named Wiraj (Barkhad Abdi), an illegal immigrant who he met on the road to London. Along with Wiraj Group and the others return the money. In the refugee camp where he lives Wiraj, he distributes all the money for people in the field. He has enough money for a fake passport and a ticket to India. But before going to India, he went to Paris where he meets Marie, who is now dating another guy. He returned to India and started working as a teacher at school. One day Marie arrives at school and tells Hague that she left the boyfriend of her, and then they kiss. And with this he ends his story with three children. He then offers to those children to be forgiven for the four-year custody if they attend school every day of Aja, they accept. Just before the film ends, one of the friends asked Aja "It was a true story?" And then Aja says "only the important parts."
